CUT ON DENVER TICKETS.

Old Mexican Concessions Withdrawn and New Projects Contemplated -Railroad News.

There were no decided developments in the Western passenger rate trouble yesterday. Chairman Caldwell, of the Western Passenger Association, says all competing roads will be authorized to meet the $30 round-trip rate to Salt Lake City. Sevaral of the more conservative roads are trying to conceal the trouble. The Santa Fe says it will not meet the $30 rate unless it sees enough business ahead to justify it. The selling dates for the $30 tickets from Chicago have been cut down, by agreement, to one day, Aug. 6. It is the conservative opinion that the round-trip rate, Chicago to Denver, will go down to $20 and to the Missouri river to $8.

chants say that during the last three or four days at least 1,000,000 bushels of export corn have been contracted for shipment from Kansas, Nebraska and even Iowa points to the Southern ports via Kansas City by reason of the extremely low rates in effect by the Southwestern lines. Chairman Fish, of the Chicago Board of Trade committee on transportation, through an official of an Eastern road yesterday telegraphed the board of managers of the Joint Traffic Association, asking them to recon-

Mexican Railway Concessions. Several large railroad projects are under consideration in Mexico, and the policy of that government is to forfeit all the old concessions on conditions which have not been complied with. It is reported on good authority that a very important concession will soon be granted to Chicago parties whose responsibility and ability to carry out the terms of the concession have been demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of the government. This line will develop northwestern Mexico, and it is regarded as a long step toward the completion of the Omaha shippers have signed a petition to the State Board of Transportation, asking that body to appeal to the Interstate-commerce Commission for just rates from Omaha to Iowa points, they claiming that at present unjust discrimination in rates is granted to Council Bluffs.

It is pretty generally believed that the ction of the C., H. & D., the Nickel-plate and Clover Leaf in returning to the use of interchangeable mileage books will be followed soon by like action on the part of all lines in the territory east of Chicago and west of Buffalo and Pittsburg. Pretty near all points west of the Mississippi are making trouble over alleged liseriminations in favor of some other point. Now the merchants of Abilene have appealed to the State Board of Kansas for obbers' rates to that city, alleging that Junction City and Salina are thus favored. Eastern roads have authorized the usual excursion rates and arrangements for a number of events, including the following: Sept. 14 to 19, Indiana State fair at Indianapolis; Sept. 28 to Oct. 3, Illinois State fair graphers' Association and United States Military Telegraph Corps, Pittsburg. John A. Jackman, one of the pioneer railway men of the country, died at Bloomington, Ill., on Thursday, at the age of eighty years. He was a native of New Hampshire and began his business life as station agent of the Boston & Worcester road, now the Eoston & Albany. considered an insuperable objection.

The construction of the Shelbyville Southern railroad, for which a company was organized during the present week, is understood to be for the purpose of giving the Pennsylvania a new line from St. Louis to Chicago in place of the old connection with the Illinois Central, recently abrogated by the affiliation of the latter company and the Big Four. The new line will be about the same length as that used by the Illinois Central's Diamond special. When the new line gets into operation COMPETING ROADS AUTHORIZED TO there will be four lines out of St. Louis to Chicago, instead of three as at present. The matter of the quarrel arising out of the rates to the fire chiefs' convention at Salt Lake City, illustrated the fact that It takes but a trifle to set passenger traffic managers by the ears. The trouble started with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul offering a $30 rate, Chicago to Salt Lake. Strenuous efforts were made by competing lines to induce the C., M. & St. P. to withdraw this rate, but without success, and it has been decided to meet the cut. A liberal estimate of the entire number of people from the East who will go on this trip through Chicago is one hundred, and yet out of this affair a state of feeling is being engendered that may lead to a ruinous rate war. An effort is making now to limit the sale of tickets to one day.

The railways of the country are deeply interested in the free-coinage question, as many of them have bonds affeat to a vast amount which are payable, interest and principal, in gold. The returns made for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, showed that of the total bonded indebtedness of all the roads in the country, fully two-thirds were gold bonds. Twenty-eight companies having a total bonded indebtedness of $2,384,130,268, had $1,831,539,081 of gold bonds outstanding. The Atchison system had $109,113,500 of gold bonds out of a total of $163,591,810. The Denver & Rio Grande had out $43,136,060 in bonds-all gold; the Great Reports to Chicago Board of Trade mer- | Northern over $90,000,000-all gold; the Northern Pacific (new) $190,000,000-all gold, and the Reading (new) $134,538,606-all gold. The death of Robert Garrett will awaken in the minds of old rallroad men some sad reflections. Up to the death of John W. Garrett, the father of Robert, in 1884, the Baltimore & Ohio was one of the best pieces of railroad property in the United dend paying capacity, and its stock was needed only a few months to disclose the the territory and business of the road, the result being that he was soon beyond his competent to make head against, and the property wert rapidly from bad to worse, to end eventually in bankruptcy. It is unquestionable that his failure in the manwith Robert Garrett's mental collapse.

house of Saul can be found. He proposes to broaden his kindness to include the family of Jonathan's father, and that out of regard for Jonathan. SERVANT.-Those who were questioned replied that there was at court an old servant of Saul named Ziba. This man had doubtless been an official of much dignity under the former reign (Gen. xxxix. 6), and had been retained because of his ability. When brought into the presence | that S. O. Sharp had told him that they with the comment that it was desired to mark displayed the spirit of King David. and must have assured the servant. Ziba the house of Machir, in Lodebar, east of the Jordan, and that he was lame in his feet. This fact called up a tender history. When Jonathan was slain in battle this son was but five years old. His nurse, on learning of the disaster (II Sam. iv. 4), seized the child in her arms and fled. But in her haste the boy fell and was injured for life. On that account he was called Mephibosheth. After all the years of retirement he is made known to David lished the sad death of his father. ence by prostrating himself on his face. David was the most exalted personage on

He sent trusty officers and brought Mephibosheth out of his obscure home to Jerusalem. The young man must have been surprised at the splendor of the capital, surpassing anything which he had seen before. On appearing before David he manifested rever-This act was common in the presence of superiors (Gen. xlviii, 12.) Mephibosheth, although a little child at his father's death, must have known some thing of that father's estimate of David and he must have cherished similar feelings of regard. He came now on an unusual errand, invited by the good ling, who as his father's friend would henceforth be his protector and benefactor. Such circumstances must have awakened the deepest and most ardent affection. PROMISE.-David's treatment of his invited guest was extremely gentle. While the latter was bowed in reverence the king spoke his name (Verse 6), a mark of recognition, a pledge of good will. Then came three great promises, any one of them enough to fill any ordinary heart with astonishment. The first was a promise of kindness for the father's sake (II Tim. i. at Springfield; Scpt. 9 to 11, Old-time Tele- 16-18), so that Mephibosheth should come into the covenant in the place of Jonathan. This promise contained many beautiful elements-a great king and an unfortunate young man, the love of both for the dead, the renewal of a pledge made years ago. The second promise gave to Mephibosheth all the estate of Saul, his grandfather, which had descended to David as king, which he now transferred. This made the young man wealthy in a day. The third promise exceeded all bounds in its generosity. David proposed that Jonathan's should eat bread at the royal table (I Kings ii, 7), becoming thereby a member of the household (Luke xxii, 30.) These offers overwhelmed Mephibosheth, who humbled himself and disclaimed all worth-furnished Mephibosheth a home. (Ch. xvii. 27.) The response of Ziba must have greatly increased the comfort of all parties, relieving them from all anxiety in the execution of plans. FULFILLED.-The summary statement contained in Verse 13 of our lesson may not attract attention. The simple assertion is made that the arrangement of David was carried out. Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem and ate at the king's table. But how long and with what result after history shows. For nearly two decades there was nothing to mar the relations subsisting between the two. The king did not grow weary of his charge, the young man did not complain of any unkindness. There is no record of any unrest or intrigue, any attempt to place the grandson of Saul on the throne. The rebellion of Absalom cast a shadow over the hitherto peaceful family. When David fled from Jerusalem, Mephibosheth remained behind. Ziba accused him of traitorous intention, but he pleaded his innocence and went out to meet the returning king. (II Sam. xix, 24-30.) It States. CAME FOR TROUBLE.

Stranger Reaches the City and Soon Lands in the Police Station.

Frank Smith, who says he lives wherever he has his hat off, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, evidently looking for trouble. He and a friend went into Frank O'Brien's saloon, 251 East Washington street, and played a game of pool, in which Smith lost. This angered him and, in giving vent to his feelings, he ripped the cloth off the top of the table. From this place they went to McFadden's saloon and found Mr. McFadden sitting in front of his place. Smith's feelings were still suffering from the defeat he had received at the other place, and he started to tell McFadden about it. In telling it he again became excited and, picking up a chair, he threw it at the door of the saloon, breaking the screen and the glass. When Mc-Fadden saw what the man was going to do he grabbed him, but too late to save his property. He held to Smith and called for help, but Smith's partner did not restruck him in the face, trying to make him liberate Smith, but, failing in this, fled, and when the police arrived was notion, assault and battery and malicious trespass. Upon him was found a small

W. C. T. U. Day Crowded with Many Events of Interest-Two Hucksters Arrested and Released.

Thursday's heavy rain brought the longedfor cooler weather to the encampment and the morning opened yesterday with fine prospects for the last of the W. C. T. U. days. Mrs. Katherine Lente Stevenson was the center of attention during her stay and her talk at the mothers' meeting was a model one of its kind; her well-bred voice and pleasant manner made her talk doubly attractive and interesting.

The rule excluding hucksters from selling on the grounds without a license went into effect yesterday with the result that two men were arrested before 9 o'clock for violating it, but as the law was not widely known they were released and allowed to leave the grounds.

After the morning song and praise service Dr. Homer J. Hall, of Franklin, gave a talk on "A Physician's View of Alcohol," The Doctor defined alcohol as "the concentrated quintessence of vegetable damnation." "It is a product of death," he said, "and it stunts physically, morally, intellectually and spiritually. It interferes with the acuteness of man's fine senses. Two teaspoonsful of pure alcohol lessens man's sight 10 per cent. Five drops of alcohol in the mouth acts as a narcotic on the system. Its one valuable use in medicine is to use it as an antiseptic and there are antiseptics on the market just as good and ten times cheaper. Many mothers start their children to the use of alcohol by giving them strong tea and coffee before they have reached their teens, and many introduce it into their families by using patent medicines, for 99 per cent of patent medicines consist of alcohol and opium. .The speaker said that wholesale liquor dealers furnish liquor to hotels to be used in food to increase an appetite for the alcohol. The Doctor closed his talk by saying

A ladies' quartet from Whiteland furnished the music of the morning. quartet consisted of Misses Dickson, Alexnder, McLean and Williams The recording secretary, Mrs. Cammack then conducted a children's meeting, using chart to illustrate her talk on temperance. Mrs. Cammack gave a talk similar to those given in the public schools on that subject which the last Republican Legislature of Indiana made possible in this State. Her talk so interested the chil-

Her talk was on the clothing, food and enducation of the child and she said that the mothers of the Nation have not been trained properly and the homes of the wealthy are lacking in latelligent mothers as are those of the poor, The cure for social impurity is our intelligent hatred of it put into action. Mrs. Stevenson also led the noontide prayer meeting, which has been a feature introduced since the W. C.

T. U. meetings have begun. In the afternoon Mrs. Ella Wright, of Greencastle, gave a talk on the necessity of industrial schools and spoke particularly of the W. C. T. U. Industrial School of this State, which the speaker said was being watched all over the country as many States were preparing to follow Indiana's example. She said that out of 870 girls arrested in Chicago not one of them had ever learned a trade. Mrs. Whitson, of Indianapolis, described Marion country's W. C. T. U.'s method of raising money for their work, after which Miss Brehm, the national superintendent, Mrs. Buchanan, the police matron of Indianapolis, gave a report of the ninety-five arrests that came under her charge during the month of July and said that during her term of office there had been 231 boys under fourteen years of age in her charge, 260 foreigners and 3,363 female prisoners under twenty years of age under her care. She said that those arrested for leading shameful lives should always be sent to the workhouse for hard labor. Many of them are simply fined, which is no punishment for them. Mrs. Buchanan asked that all the ladies present see that the law requiring the sheriff to provide a female attendant for insane women when he is moving them from one place to another be strictly enforced, but added that the law would have to be amended as no penalty for nonenforcement was attached. Miss Brehm asked a dozen ladies to the platform and an interesting model meeting was conducted. Every department of work was clearly shown under Miss Brehm's leadership. At 4:30 Mrs. Cammack's talk to the children was continued. Last night an enthusiastic Murph; League meeting was held in the pavilion. At 9 o'clock Miss Boteler took for her subject "Fishers of Men." After reading the eighteenth and nineteenth verses of the fourth chapter of Matthew she said: "He who follows in the footsteps of the Son of God becomes a fisher of men. In these modern times we are apt to forget notified, and, with Whitsett's undertaking | that each one of us should constitute himwill leave the work to some one who is more capable. But we are not living in a time when this work is narrowed down to such a limit and any one who places God before man is a fisher of men. In speaking of this figure of speech many interpreters of the Bible think that Christ clothed his thought in these words so that his disciples would understand Him, since the most of them were fishermen, but this is one of the best figures in the Bible, nowhere do we find such a fitting expres-

'Now there are two kinds of fishermen in the world. One fishes for the mere sake of doing the act. He throws the fish on the sand and cares no more for them. The other makes a wise use of them after catching them. That is a good deal the way it is in the church; some members will try very hard to bring the wandering titles and make collections. Right to into the church, but after they are there kind of fishers will try harder to hold them in the church after their conversion the they worked before. That is the great fault of the revival; the paster throws out his fish net into the flood of religion and catches many souls, but after the excitement is over they are left in the sands of idleness and neglect until the next reviv-

"Some one not long ago said that slumming is a fad with fashionable women just the same as poodle dogs and china painting was a few years ago; all I can say is that if that is so it shows a very progressive spiritual development of the fad. In regard to this spreading of the gospel I think any one of us would much rather go down in the highways of sin and heathendor than ring the doorbell of some fashionable home and enter the library and attempt to persuade the shriveled soul found there to expand and develop in the sunlight of Christianity. The slums and the scums lie very close together.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. Candace Lahmon Smith ddressed the assembly on "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Mrs. Smith's hursband has been a missionary in India. 'Everything in life has its keynote." she said, "not only in the case of musical instruments, but in human nature. Some natures are so finely strung that all that is good will find there an echo; some are so bad that the reverse is true. Too often we frame our lives on the question. "What will people say?" Mothers will not let their children go without shoes or play horse in the parlor because of what the neigbors might say, If Johnny tells a story his mother says, what will people think of you?" Why can't we teach our children to look nice, to do their best, to love the truth because it pleases God? "Too often some say 'Lord, I am all right, but what wilt thou have the other fellow do?' Jesus said, 'What is that to thee? Follow me.' One who would like to shirk says, 'Lord, I am here, but send my neighbor's first wife's cousin.' Human need is the voice of God and when we ask earnestly, 'Lord, what wilt thou have us do,' he will answer as surely as he did Speaking further, she said: "I once saw a picture of the cross with a woman cling ing to it. I thought it was most beautifu but I have outgrown that. Once again saw this same picture of the cross with a woman clinging to it with one arm and with the other arm she was lifting up another woman; that was the finest picture I have ever seen and it gives the true idea of our society, lifting up womanhood from the sin and degradation and superstition of the ages.

At 11 o'clock Rev. Mr. Russell, of Columbus, O., gave a lecture on Lord Alfred Tennyson. He first gave a description of the poet's childhood and schooldays. Early in life he showed signs of the poetic gift. One day when only five years old he was out in a very hard storm and coming home he told of the voices he had heard in the winds. His older brother was very much devoted to him and one day when the famer had read it he said, "Yes, you can write
